

Guidelines for authors of PAGES news science highlight articles

Text

- Articles should be written for an interdisciplinary, international audience.
- Maximum of 1,200 words for the body of the article.
- A one-sentence abstract highlighting the key finding of the article.
- Use U.S. English spelling.
- Format authors and affiliations, as well as an email address for the corresponding author, as shown in the following example (do not include street addresses or postal codes):

C. Schmidt¹, T. Brown² and L. Smith³

¹Department of Geology, University of Bern, Switzerland; schmidt@geol.unibe.ch

²Institute of Chemistry, Australian National University, Canberra, Australia

³School of Geography, University of Plymouth, UK

- Subheadings should be included to break up the text.
- Explain obscure terms, and spell out acronyms and abbreviations.
- Ages and dates should use the units ka or Ma, where appropriate.
- Keep acknowledgements as short as possible.
- Text, references and figure captions (but NOT figures) should be submitted in one Microsoft Word file.

References

- All data that appear in PAGES news should be submitted to an international database. Please supply the database name and URL so that these can be listed at the end of the article.
- Only 5 references will be printed beneath the article. All other cited references will be listed online on an “additional references” page. Please indicate which 5 references are to be printed.
- All references in the article should be cited with names and dates, rather than being numbered, e.g., (Schmidt et al., 2005).
- Do not use Endnote links or other referencing programs.
- References should be formatted as in the following examples, using “et al.” only when there are more than 10 authors, or for book editors:

For journal articles–

Schmidt, C., Brown, T. and Smith, L., 2007: Use of paleoscience data, Science, 5(25): 35-38.

For book chapters–

Schmidt, C., Brown, T. and Smith, L., 2007: Use of paleoscience data. In: Alverson, K., et al. (Eds), Paleoscience Global Change and the Future, Springer, 35-38.

Figures

- 1-2 figures.
- Figures must be modified from previously published versions and cited as “Figure modified from...” in the caption OR permission for reprint must be obtained.
- Figures and graphs should be submitted electronically in Illustrator, eps or pdf format, saved directly from the software used to create them.
- Photos must be high resolution, no less than 300 dpi (when saved at the size appropriate for final publication) in psd, tiff or jpeg format.
